STORM DOES SOME DAMAGE

WIND AND HAIL HURTS CORN IN SOME PLACES

RAINFALL 3.9 INCHES

Lightning Strikes a Team and Burns a Barn—Watermelon Crop Suffers

Nodaway County was un unwilling host last night to a rain, hail and wind storm which was accompanied by a generous amount of thunder and lightning interspersed to break the monotony of the evening. It was truly an all-night party. The residents of Nodaway County had as unpleasant a time as could be imagined.

The total contribution of rainfall was 3.94 inches, 3.9 of which fell, and fell rapidly, from 7:30 last night to 6 o'clock this morning. The moisture wasn't exactly needed at this time and the hail and rain did considerable damage over the county. The lightning dipped in some places to do its share of damage.

Nodaway County was busy this morning taking stock of its condition following the storm last night. Little damage was done in Maryville. In spots over the county the corn was damaged but in other places it was unhurt.

The lightning is reported to have struck a few places in the county doing some damage. A team of horses belonging to John Hovenkotter, near Parnell was struck by the lightning. Lightning struck a barn of D. A. Gelvin, southwest of Maitland burning it to the ground. In the barn was a mule, a horse and a quantity of hay which was burned.

Lightning struck a cable of the Hannamo Telephone Co. in three places along in the 500 block on East Third street last night. Several drops throughout the city running into private residences were put out of commission by the wind. Employes of the telephone company had the cable back in order this morning and expected to get all of the trouble caused by the storm cleared up by this evening.

South of Maryville, Roy Lippman reports a big rain, not much hail and not a great deal of damage done to corn. Geo. Coler, southeast of Maryville, said they got lots of rain, a light hail and enough wind to blow some of the corn in his vicinity. Mr. Coler said the rain was a little hard on the watermelons.

Northwest of Maryville it hailed Saturday night to damage the corn some, but they had no hail last night. The wind last night blew the corn down badly in several places, according to Ed Gingrich. Northeast of town the hail was light but the wind did much damage to the corn. Ernest Wray said this morning that the wind from the south earlier in the week blew the corn north then the north wind last night churned much of the corn out of the ground. No hail is reported in the vicinity of Pickering and Hopkins but the wind seems to have been stronger with equally as much rain as elsewhere in the county. The 102 River at Maryville is bank full and with the heavy rains north, is expected to go out of its banks. To the west, White Cloud is considerably out of its banks.

From the meager reports that he had received throughout the county early this morning, the county agent, J. Ross Fleetwood, was of the opinion the heavy wind of last night, aided by the strong winds from the storm during the latter part of last week, caused damage to the corn crop in this county running into thousands of dollars.

There is no way to estimate the damage, but the effect upon the corn that was in the storm district, and the storm seemed to be quite general over the county, will be the shriveling up of the kernels, as the roots of the corn have been pulled up above the ground, therefore the ears will be affected because the roots will not be able to feed them on account of exposure. The corn, Mr. Fleetwood says, is now in the stage between roasting ears and the dough stage and any hindrance to the filling out of the ears will affect the yield. Also, the corn being blown over in many places, the farmers will be hindered when the shucking time comes.

The use of ladders attached to wagons for the purpose of facilitating picking of corn, because of its unusual height, may give way to knee pads, someone now suggests.

Hail claims were filed today with a local insurance company by Charles Porter, northwest of town, T. C. Coil, south and Joe Fogan, east of town.

The Maryville Electric Light & Power Co. experienced very little trouble from the results of the storm lost night, according to officers of the company this afternoon. The Ravenwood line was cut off for a short while this morning and a transformer on North Mulberry street was damaged and a few fuses blown out, were about the total damage that was occurred.

SAYS LAW IS AFTER HER

APPARENTLY DERANGED IOWA WOMAN FOUND WEST OF CITY.

IS SENT TO GALLATIN

Mother There, Says Her Name Is Mrs. Lawrence Combs—Enters Gates Home Last Night.

A deranged woman, giving her name as Mrs. Lloyd Kerns of Oakland, Iowa, twenty-five miles east of Council Bluffs entered the house of John Gates, west of the Country Club, about 9 o'clock last evening. She was unable to tell the Gates very much. The officials were notified and Deputy Sheriff Harve England and Lloyd Heifner went out for her and brought her to the county jail.

According to the story told the officers, Mrs. Kerns, who seems to be mentally unbalanced, said her husband left her last Friday at Oakland. She stated the law was after her and that the law took her car. She did not know how far she had walked but said she hadn't had anything to eat since Friday and refused to eat anything at the county jail this morning for breakfast.

On the trip into town last night with the officers, she prayed that lightning would strike her as she said she would rather be in her grave than be taken back.

While her shoes were muddy, yet her clothing did not indicate she had been out in the rain last evening.

Her mother was given as Mrs. W. M. Parker at Gallatin. Mr. Heifner in talking to Mrs. Parker found out that her name was Mrs. Lawrence Combs. She had $2 in money and she was sent to Gallatin on No. 12 Wabash passenger today.

When leaving for Gallatin this morning Mrs. Cambs appeared quite sensible and told the officers she was on her way to visit her mother at Gallatin, whom she had not seen for a year.

It is the supposition that she has left her husband, who is a farmer near Oakland, Ia., and started her journey in a Ford touring car. She was seen south of the Wilcox oil station in the car about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, where the car was in a ditch. Motorists helped her get the car out of the ditch and she started on again.

She evidently abandoned the car when the storm came up yesterday. The car has an Iowa license and officers were making an attempt to locate it today.

The Ford touring which Mrs. Combs had abandoned yesterday was found this noon by John Gates near the Cecil Everett farm, just a short distance west of the Bovard corner.

Shenandoah Is Routed by Navy

St. Joseph, Kansas City and St. Louis are Included—May Fly Over Nodaway County.

Washihngton, Aug. 17.—The 3,000-mile itinerary of the navy dirigible, Shenandoah from Lakehurs over the Middle West during the first week in September was announced by the navy department today.

The trip is so arranged that the Shenandoah will fly over state fairs in many cities.

The itinerary included St. Louis, Kansas City and St. Joseph, Mo. In case of bad weather it was announced that it might be necessary to postpone the trip to Kansas City and St. Joseph.

Previous communications from Congressman Chas. L. Faust and Senator James A. Reed stated that it was probable that the Shenandoah would fly over Nodaway County enroue from Des Moines and Creston.

$1,200 Is Raised for Road Damages

Committee Reports Goal is Reached for New Road to Run Mile West of Davis School

Judge E. T. Bailey of the county court was informed Saturday afternoon that the committee soliciting funds for damages on the new road, which was sanctioned by the county court to be opened from the Davis school, south of Maryville, for a mile west connecting up with the Graham road, had reached its goal of $1,200.

The petitioners for this road promised the county court that they would raise this amount for damages to the property owners by the middle of the month and the money was subcribed in the southwestern part of the county and around Maitland.

Here's a Roasting Ear That Will Feed the Family

An ear of corn fifteen inches long with shucks and the stem measuring a total of twenty-seven inches, was picked at random this morning by Delvert Vert, northwest of town, from his field and brought to town. Mr. Vert says this is not an unusual ear either as he could pick a wagon-load of the same size from his field. His corn shows no damage from the hail last night and the roots seem to be intact despite the heavy winds.

However, Fred Killam, who lives a half mile south of the Mr. Vert, said this morning that his corn was riddled by the hail and badly damaged.

The students are generally sorry that Scopes is not coming back. As one student said, "Shucks, our football team will be all busted up. Scopes had big trips for us and we cleaned up last year. But what does a fundamentalist know about football."

URGES "SHOW YOU" FOR MO.

GOVERNOR BAKER SPEAKS THIS AFTERNOON AT STATE FAIR

HITS PAROLE SYSTEM

Convict Should Stay in Prison, He Says, Then Urges Intermediate Reformatory

Sedalia, Mo., Aug. 17—Make Missouri the "Show You" state rather than the "Show Me" state.

That was the plea of Governor Sam Baker as he spoke before the Missouri State Fair here today. A large crowd was in attendance to hear the state executive.

Pointing out the needs of Missouri, the governor said there was need of advertising the state's great resources first at home and then abroad there was need for an intermediate reformatory there is need of a workmen's compensation act, a need of a revision of the referendum law and a permanent fund for the educational institutions of the state.

"The panacea for all our ailments is human sympathy," the governor declared. "While we are building in a material way, we must not build altogether with brick, nor stone, nor wood, but with justice, love and brotherhood."

The chief executive declared that Missouri is first in poultry, diversified farming, number of crops and fruits, hay market, egg production, purebred quality livestock, flavor of fruits, lead, zinc, and mines. He said the state had the largest feeder cattle market in the world, was first as a well watered state, grows more more and taller blue grass than Kentucky.

More blue grass seed is grown in Gentry County than in any other county in the world, the governor said.

Missouri's fame as the mule market still insurpassed Baker declared. The jacks and mules in this state win more first prizes at stock shows over the country than any other animals from other states.

Coupled with this is the fact that the first and second largest horse and mule markets in the world are located in Missouri, again showing the strength of Missouri as a horse and mule center, he said.

The former existing barriers between various sections of the state have been or are being wiped away throught the extensive road building program now underway over the state, the governor said. When the roads are completed the people of Missouri will be brought more closely together, and there will be a state intimacy never before recorded.

With this neighboorly feeling put over, the governor pointed out that it was necessary there be a revival of interest in the development of Missouri—in the making of a "Show You" state rather than the "Show Me" state.

Governor Baker said there was need for an intermediate reformatory because there are some men and women who violate the law who are not criminals in the strictest sense. He then launched into execssive paroles from state penal institutions by saying:

"The convict should stay in prison until the end of his term and there should be no maudlin sentiment in his case."

In recommending a revision of the referendum law the governor suggested a provision requiring all signers to referendum petitions to journey to the county seats and attach their signatures in the presence of county clerks. He said it was too easy under the present system to refer constructive legislation, apparently referring to the recent referendum against the Workmen's Compensation Act.

The governor said the administration is now working on a propsed constitutional amendment which may be submitted to the voters of November, 1926, providing a permanent school fund for the educational institutions of the state.

He said there was no necessity of making an argument for education—as education provided the argument itself.

Mrs. Juno Claypool and children of Council Bluffs, came this morning to visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harve England.

Mrs. Roda Allen and son, Dexter, and Charles Babard, of Council Bluffs, were visiting the past week at the Harve England home.

Bob Jr. Announces A Platform Plank

Young LaFollette Doesn't Intend to Run on Father's Prestige, He Says.

Madison, Wis., Aug. 17.—Emphasizing the fact that he was not a candidate because he is the son of Robert M. LaFollette, Sr., and asking no support because of that fact, Robert M. LaFollette, Jr., today announced his first political platform for the race to succeed his father in the United States Senate.

"I am a candidate on the platform endorsed by the voters of Wisconsin three years ago when Robert M. LaFollette, Sr., was elected to his fourth term in the Senate," Young LaFollette's statement declared. "If I am chosen to fill out the unexpired term I shall do all in my power to fulfill the pledges and carry out that platform. Its spirit and intent shall guide my every public service."

Plymouth, Vt., Aug. 17.—The eyes of the world are focused on this little Vermont hamlet today.

In conference here is President Coolidge, Andrew Mellon and United States Senator Smoot. They are considering the proposal made to this government by the Belgians for a settlement of the Belgian war and post-war debt.

Upon acceptance or rejection of the Belgian terms may rest in a large measure, the future foreign policy of the Coolidge administration. France and Italy still must settle with the United States and they are watching developments in the Belgian negotiations with intense interest.

Mellon and Smoot, outstanding members of the Americaan funding commission, arrived at Ludlow, 12 miles from here early today and were immediately motored to the President's modest home in Plymouth.

Theatre Crowd Orderly in Fire

St. Louis, Aug. 17—While fire was destroying drops behind the asbestos curtain, 4,000 persons made an orderly exit from Loew's state theatre here in five minutes as the orchestra played the national anthem Sunday night.

A short circuit in back stage electrical wiring was believed to have caused the fire. Damage was estimated at $25,000.

HERE, THERE, AND NOWHERE

"DUTCH" ANDERSON, CHAPMAN PAL AND SLAYER, STILL MISSING

WRITES TWO LETTERS

One Received at Columbus, O., and One at Springfield, Mass., Purporting to Be From Gunman.

Muncie, Ind., Aug. 17—Virtually all hope of capturing Geo. "Dutch" Anderson in connection with the slaying of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Hance last Saturday, was abandoned in this region today although the police continued their search for the elusive convict. Anderson is enroute to Florida where he has a rendevous in the everglades, according to Earl Randolph, chief of police.

Others expressed the belief that Anderson was lurking within striking distance of the Connecticut state prison in hopes of affecting the escape of Gerald Chapman whom he is supposed to have avenged by killing Hance and his wife because it was Hance who placed Chapman in the hands of the police.

New York, Aug. 17—The New York Evening Journal turned over a letter to the police which they received this afternoon from Geo. "Dutch" Anderson, which announced that he had escaped to Springfield, Mass. where he was preparing to dole out further vengeance to one of Gerald Chapman's enemies. The letter came in an envelope that was postmarked Springfield and was dated Sunday, Aug. 16.

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 17—Following the receipt of a letter from George "Dutch" Anderson, wanted for slaying Mr. and Mrs. Ben Hance of Muncie, Ind., William J. King, private detective, was reported to be on his way to Cleveland to work on the case.

The second letter received by Anderson was written on Colonial Hotel stationery, from Cleveland and was postmarked 8:30 p. m. Saturday. It was as laconic as the first and read:

"King, you may think that newspaper publicity will help you but it won't. Dutch."

King said he recognized Anderson's handwriting.

Curious Tourists Annoy Coolidge

End of Father's Front Porch Screened With Sheets to Shut Out Curious Eyes.

Plymouth, Vt., Aug. 17.—The tourists which have stood the past few days by the hundreds a few yards down the road and gaped for hours at the front porch of the ancestral home of President Coolidge in the hope they would catch a glimpse of the executive or members of his family, are now "out of luck."

Early today the President and Mrs. Coolidge, aided by two deputy sheriffs, stretched a cloth on the end of the porch that faces the cross roads. It was a homemade screen fashioned out of bedsheets and spliced together in such a fashion as to most effectively shield the porch from public view.

Yesterday nearly four hundred stood more than an hour and a half to catch every move the presidential family made and then jammed into the church at the cross roads when Coolidge attended the afternoon services.

THE FAD OF COLLECTING

Sometime or other in their lives every man and woman succumbs to the lure of collecting. Some make it their vocation, others their avocation. With some it is a business while others follow it as a pastime. It may only be a passing fad or a life-long custom.

One of the strangest collections was that made by a European chiropodist of the nail trimmings from the toes of royalty and great personages. The nail from the toe of a prince should not differ materially from that of a pauper, but this collector spent his life in saving and classifying his pedicurings.

In every community there are collectors of antique furniture, postage stamps, old and rare coins, family heirlooms, old fashioned quilts and shawls, old books and many other things which lend themselves to collecting.

The collecting urge among the majority is probably the desire to build up a treasure of curios for display. Then there are many persons who expect some day to derive financial gain from their collections. But it can be said for most collectors that once they have gotten together a valuable array of the rare or antique they would as soon part with a very dear friend as their collection.

Let the efficiency "birds" and the practicalists chide the collector for his expenditure of time and money on the obsolete and inutile. That which affords man recreation and surcease from the serious business of making a living is of inestimable value to mankind and such a thing is the collecting habit. It is to the amateur that our museums and libraries must turn for the old and rare.

TREASURE AND TRASH

In 1838 the congregation of a New York church decided the crystal chandeliers of its church auditorium were too old-fashioned for a prosperous, progressive church. Consequently the great central chandelier was stored in the church attic and the twenty-four companion fixtures were donated to other churches.

Another generation of parishoners recently uncovered the long forgotten chandelier-in-chief, was thrown into aesthetic raptures over its beauty and antiquity, and set about repossessing all of its mates that could be located. In 1766, the year they were originally installed in the church, these chandeliers were deemed ultra-modern. In 1838 they were literally junked. Today they are more prized than the best modern craftsmen can create.

What one generation stores away in the attic the next puts in the parlor or museum or sells for fabulous sums. The descendant who inherits the old furniture which has come down through several generations is not heir to trash. He becomes rich in the eyes of the collector and has riches brought within his reach if he chooses to deal with the dealer in antiques.

This generation boasts of the study but not less artistic pieces of furniture which it has inherited from its colonial ancestors. Can it be equally as proud of the things it is leaving in the attic for future generations?

A prominent citizen says he will give five dollars to any one who can show him a place where he won't see a woman repairing her complexion for thirty minutes. He longs for a short rest from the ceaseless powdering act.

If all the speeders go there, the road to hell will need repaving before long.

WHEN ADVERTISING DIDN'T PAY.

A farmer listed his farm with a real estate company. A week later the firm advertised it for sale. They so elaborately described the place that the farmer didn't recognize it as his own. Deciding that it was exactly what he wanted, he visited the real estate office inquiring about it. On consulting the list, the clerk discovered that it was the customer's own farm. When told this the farmer said: "Wal, I don't care to sell at all now."—Shenandoah Sentinel-World.

DARROW GETS HIS ANSWER.

Death has come to a man who was, as he said himself, not without his battles—has come gently as dreamland whisperings to a sleeping child, leaving only calm peace and rest. The majestic quietude of it, together with the circumstances that came before, makes the death of William Jennings Bryan at once a chaplet for his career and a touchstone to judge him by.

Pictures come to show us now—of a lad set upon a table to fan aglow the hearts of plainsmen with words of winged persuasion of a young unknown rising amidst the counsellors of his party to brush them from their feet in the sweep of impetuous advocacy; of the dauntless veteran of countless principled victories and of many personal defeats of a Warwick at Baltimore as with the magic of his voice and the might of his courage alone he snatches success out of failure and names a man to change, as it turns out, the history of the world. But they fade, these pictures do, and one only persists beyond them all, not so high or wide or glamorous, perhaps, as the others seem but rooted deeper than any of them is the soul-stuff that is in us all. And, for all we know, the years that shall measure him will be unable to erase it.

It is a picture of the man now dead sitting with an old palmleaf fan, held as Couer de Lion might have held his mace or Charles Martel his hammer, confronting his adversary, a squat and half crouched figure set for the fray upon his chosen ground. Again we are at that wild, that foolish, that transcendental trial where cunning doubt and stubborn faith wrestled like Michael and Satan disputing over the body of Moses. Again we sense the drama of that background of simple, believing country folks interspersed with chaffing, jeering, sight-seeing incomers from at large. Again we all but feel the swish of agellant question and the unyielding fierceness of reply that outraged all rules of court procedure, of orderly discussion or even of common fairplay. Again we find ourselves fascinated at it, and again are we provoked at the heedlessness of it all. We know now how terribly in earnest Bryan must have been and the knowing silences even the skeptic's sneer. The dignity of death in such a case magnifies the intent to the overshadowing of the deed.

Bryan may have known less than Darrow, of the origin of man. None of us know any too much. Nor does it matter in the larger scale of values upon which the one of these two built his whole life while the other is ignored. For it is not the origin, but the destiny of man that counts. The answer to doubt, of course, is no argument, no, not even from the lips of surpassing eloquence. And so it comes about that in the untroubled passing of Bryan, the believer, Darrow has his answer bigger than any question which he can contrive to fame—more convincing than any hypothesis upon which he can stumble in his searchings—and perhaps in the contemplation of it he, with many a comrade in doubt, has in his thinking uncovered at last his own soul, naked groping and afraid.—Dallas News.

Railroad Foreman Is the Champion Eloper

Genora, Ill., Aug. 17—Harry Winters, a railroad labor foreman, is the champion eloper of the world, according to John Baker, who is in a position to know.

Winters first eloped with his mother in-law, Baker charges. Then he eloped with Baker's wife and five children.

Baker now insists that Winter's retire with the championship unchallenged. Mrs. Ruby Baker and the five young Bakers are back at home. Winters is in jail.

Hobbies of the Great and Near Great in American National Life

SENATOR CHARLES M'NARY

The far flung West may have sent many "butter and egg" men to the white glare of the "Roaring Forties," but it has sent only one "prune and filbert" man to Congress.

He is Senator Charles L. McNary (R., of Ore.), a Republican spokesman for the West and one of the Senate's farm bloc leaders. His hobby is to manage a 200-acre fruit farm near Salem, Ore., on which he raises prunes cherries, walnuts and filberts.

As the Senator says:

"I am not the butter and egg man from the West of whom you've heard so much I'm only the prune and filbert man from Oregon."

The Senator, noted nationally for his extraordinary power over Congressional legislation and for his wide friendship among men of public affairs, is by no means a novice at fruit-raising. On the contrary he ranks as one of the greatest horticulturists in the West and a veritable Luther Burbank among the fruit-raisers.

Pioneer in Industry

So far as the filbert industry is concerned, the Senator is without a peer in the nation. Indeed, he was a pioneer at the industry, and as long ago as 1916 he wrote a pamphlet on the "Culture of Filberts" which was widely circulated among fruit farmers by the Salem (Ore.) Fruit Union.

Of his pamphlet the Fruit Union's officers said:

"On account of the scarcity of literature on this subject and the fast-growing interest in this new field of horticulture, we present this pamphleta to the public in the belief that its contents may stimulate an interest in an industry destined to increase the material welfare of the Northwest country."

In connection with his prune orchard, McNary has shown amazing horticultural ability along the lines made famous by Burbank. He has taken prune trees of other brands and turned them into imperials by "top-working through grafting." To the lay mind this can be explained as growing imperial blossoms on the branches of another tree—like getting white kittens from a black cat.

Grafter—of Trees

As a horticulturist, McNary also understands the science of "incubating" trees which fail too produce their own pollen. He will take pollen from another tree and virtually graft the pollen to the non-producing tree, so that ultimately it turns out as large a yield as its more prolific neighbor. This is the real science of nature.

Of his hobby, McNary says:

"It is both a pleasure and a business. It requires skill, patience and hard work, and it returns the inestimable pleasure only obtained by the nature lover who works at his play."

As for recreation, when far from his orchard, the Senator plays golf and attends baseball games. On golf he explains his record thus:

"I belong to the cub class, with a score of 110. That makes me happy, though, for I've heard it said that a man who plays over 100 is neglecting his golf, while one who plays under 100 is neglecting his business. There's that satisfaction at least in playing over 100."

As a baseball fan, the Senator's one regret last year was that his own campaign for re-election to the Senate came at a time when Washington won a pennant and a world's championship. He waited nine years for the event and then missed the series.

We Must Work Together

EVERY thoughtful citizen of this community is interested in its development and progress. There's no question about that! We all want our children to enjoy better homes, better schools, better parks — more agreeable surroundings and greater comforts.

We all want our town to keep step with its neighbors, to take the lead in civic affairs. So there is only one sound plan for us to follow:

We must work together to increase the wealth of this community by doing everything we can to encourage local business.

When you and your family patronize our advertisers — the stores and banks of our town — and keep your money in circulation right here at home, there is no power on earth that can prevent our progress.

The Low Price of Gasoline

"Civilization moves on wheels," says George Otis Smith, Director of United States Geological Survey, in an article dwelling on the relation of petroleum to society.

The accuracy of Mr. Smith's conclusion is illustrated by the published statement that 88 million Americans enjoy the use of automobiles. During 12 months ending December 31, 1924, the number of registered motor vehicles in the United States increased by 2,427,758.

The constant and rapid increase in the use of automobiles has created a demand for gasoline which could not be supplied under the old refining practices, even with our magnificent national production of crude oil. This problem would have been serious indeed had not the petroleum industry taken giant strides in increasing the yield of gasoline from a given amount of crude oil.

In this important work the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has taken a leading part; in fact, this Company developed the first commercially successful cracking process to obtain a greater percentage of gasoline from crude oil. Today cracking processes are used quite generally throughout the industry.

The tangible result of this intensive and constructive work on the part of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is reflected in published figures, revealing a 50% increase from 1918 to 1924 in the amount of gasoline recovered from a given amount of crude petroleum.

The intangible, but none the less direct, benefit of this effort of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana), is the present low price of gasoline. Except for the advanced work of this Company, motorists would be paying a much higher price for the gasoline they use. Of this achievement the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is justly proud.

This is but one of the many phases of the broad and comprehensive service rendered by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) which reflects its benefits in so obvious a way as to have earned for the Company the confidence, respect and esteem of thirty million people in ten Middle Western states.

Highway Safety For All Planned

Washington, Aug. 17.—With the preliminary studies looking to the solution of America's vast traffic problem completed, the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety is making final preparations for its important meeting in Washington in December.

Spurred by the 1924 record of more than 23,000 persons killed, thousands injured and millions of dollars' worth of property loss resulting from traffic accidents, both Federal, state and municipal officials, and private exponents of safer highway conditions are striving to perfect a new system that may be proposed in the December gathering.

Early reports seem to indicate that the publicity campaign against the careless, the drunken and the inexperienced driver has had results, as deaths during the early months of the present year show a decrease over previous periods.

While the present plans do not call for Federal traffic control, the conference believes it will be able, by co-ordination of state and municipal enforcement regulations, to bring about uniform laws throughout the United States. Lack of uniformity is one of the big factors in the high death rate and great number of accidents, according to experts.

Lenieney of courts toward traffic violators must be abandoned in order to bring about stronger enforcement, according to most officials. Even in cities and state where the laws are adequate there has been a tendency to let the traffic violator off with a light fine.

Officials, headed by Judge William McAdoo, Chief City Magistrate of New York, demand higher minimum penalties for violation, and jail sentences for reckless and drunken drivers, who are held to be as great a menace to the safety of the population as the felon.

TIRE MILEAGE

CAN ONLY COME FROM IN-BUILT QUALITY.

Dunlop tires look very similar to other reputable tires. The tread is a little different design, of course, and the bead is the distinctive Dunlop type, otherwise the tire looks much the same. It is inside, in the body of the tire, where Dunlop fineness is apparent. There you will see the tough, rubber-soaked cords, each layer diagonally arranged so as to give the greatest posible strength in both directions. It is in these rubberized cords that Dunlop miles are hidden away. They are the foundation upon which the body of the tire is constructed, the cornerstone of Dunlop quality.

Wants Motor Cut Off When Car Is Parked

Chemist Says That Idle Engines Use 400,000 Gallons of Gasoline a Year.

Idling motors are costing the United States $275,000 a day, according to Prof. Alexander Silverman of the University of Pittsburgh. Prof. Silverman made this assertion before the American Chemical Society at Los Angeles in advocating that the motorist be compelled by law not to let his engine run when his automobile is not moving.

Prof. Silverman estimates that 400,000 gallons of gasoline are consumed annually by idling motors. This is not much less than one-third of the entire production of gasoline in the United States in 1914. Though production had risen to 9,000,000,000 gallons in 1924 it scarcely kept pace with the increasing demand for gasoline and it is said that if automobiles continue to multiply the present per capita consumption of 69.3 gallonswill further increase and production resources be subjected to a greater strain.

In connection with Prof. Silverman's statements concerning the great wastage of gasoline comes the announcement of the Dupont Company that it is erecting a "pilot" factory at Charleston, W. Va., for the manufacture of synthetic methanol, by a patent process discovered by Chester A. Penning, a young chemist connected with the United States Tariff Commission. Penning discovered the patent among the seized German patents of the chemical foundation.

According to officials of the company if the new process works as expected it will practically put the wood distillation industry of this country out-of business. It would mean a new motor fuel, cheaper than gasoline, more powerful and free from tetraethyl lead.

The new process, which is used to a great extent in Germany, consists of forcing hydrogen and carbon monoxide under high pressure into a copper-lined vessel which is heated to a high temperature. In this vessel is catacyst of zinc oxide. When the various gases combine they form menthanol, which is passed through a condenser and liquified. Just how this new fuel will be adapted to the automobile, how it will be sold and the probable price have not been revealed as yet.

Wonders Whether He Is Branded a Thief

Alton, Ill., Aug. 15. (United Press)—C. C. Ellison is wondering whether he is to be branded as a thief.

A year ago the attorney parked his motor car in front of the court house in Edwardsville and when he came out it had been stolen. A diligent search was started.

Recently the motor car was found in possession of a Taylorville, Ill., youth. Ellison attempted to regain it and found difficulties.

The car had changed ownership several times—all by purchase. Ellison was forced to resort to replevin. The numbers of the motor car were the same and the key fitted the lock in the motor car, but the replevin decision went against Ellison. He decided to appeal.

However enroute from Taylorville in the motor car, with the youth driving, Ellison ehected the new owner and drove home.

The youth sent the sheriff to arrest Ellison but the sheriff didn't do so, ruling Ellison had a perfect right to "steal" his own motor car.

All parties involved are wondering just what the next move will be.

STEWART'S WASHINGTON LETTER

By Charles P. Stewart
NEA Service Writer.

Washington—How much foreign diplomats in Washington drink is none of Secretary of State Kellogg's affair, but if an embassy or legation receives more alcoholic refreshment than its entire staff can possibly consume, the question arises, "What becomes of the surplus?" Secretary Kellogg has certain suspicions on this score, which he has confided to the foreign representatives to whom they apply. That is to say, he addressed to them a polite but pretty plain little note, trusting that henceforward they'll keep their anti-Volstead importations down to what they really need for themselves and for themselves alone.

The diplomats this communication went to are by no means all from dinky little countries, either. Some among them bear credentials from highly consequential powers. The intimation that bootlegging is believed to be going on from their official residences in Washington must have reached them as a good deal of a jolt. It isn't the first time, however, that it's been broadcast from extremely well-informed sources, though never before from the Department of State. Practically ever since prohibition became effective the impression has prevailed that most of the really first class stuff in the capital came in under diplomatic protection and was dispensed in the same way.

Gen. Lincoln G. Andrews, the rather new assistant secretary of the treasury in especial charge of prohibition enforcement, is said to have given Secretary Kellogg his tip. It isn't a bit likely that Secretary Kellogg wanted news of this note to leak out. The story, however, unquestionably is true.

Spas Cinderella Story Comes to Tragic End

By HENRY MINOTT

(United Press Staff Correspondent).

New York, Aug. 17.—Gotham's modern fairy story has been concluded—but not with the conventional "and they lived happily ever after."

In fact a post mortem of the Cinderella race indicates that it was a total loss.

Little Mary Spas, the 21-year-old girl who enjoyed a short-lived victory by posing as "sweet sixteen" claims she has lost twenty-eight pounds in eleven days.

Mr. and Mrs. John Spas, her parents, claim they have lost the two $500 checks which Millionaire Edward W. Browning gave them on the day he adopted their daughter.

And Browning himself says he has lost all patience as results of the strange turn taken by the Cinderella affair.

Mary remains in seclusion at her Astoria home, struck down by blasted hopes, unfulfilled promises from "movie magnates" and an overdose of publicity.

Outside her home a curious crowd waits in the hope of catching a glimpse at her. These neighbors express only admiration and sympathy for the girl who for seven days had the world at her feet. But they will not permit her to rest because they don't want to miss the chance of seeing her should she happen to emerge from her retreat. So they stand there, talking, singing and shouting at "Cinderella Mary."

When she learned that her erstwhile fairy godfather might yet forgive her and fulfill many of the promises he made when became his daughter, Mary said:

"I don't consider there is anything for Mr. Browning to forgive. If there is any forgiveness in this affair I am the one to display it. And as for my Cinderella dreams, I have none. All I want is rest and quiet. I want my name cleared. I want to work like I always did before he got me. That's all."

Meanwhile, Browning continues to open "adoption" letters which have continued to pour into his office during the excitement attending the adventures of Mary.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Mounts and children, Frederick, Betty Lou and Beatrice, of Eckley, Colo., who have been visiting relatives for the last ten days, left today for their home. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Allen Haller and children, Guy Reece and Marian, who will visit in Eckley for a week or longer.

He was the sole remaining witness and was wanted only to tell of the girl's action the night of the killing.

Glass Houses May Be Residences of Future

Plans for building houses of glass are being considered by glass experts. Opaque glass can be produced in great quantities, it is claimed, at a reasonable cost.

"The glass house," says a writer in a trade journal, "has been the butt of many jokes, when not actually used as a target for brickbats. It has carried with it, too, the idea that everything within its walls was open to public inspection, and that the occupants must go to bed with their clothes on to avoid embarrassment.

"The material for the proposed glass house can be made in slabs one-eighth of an inch thick, thirty inches wide, and nine feet long. These slabs of opaque glass can be made in any shade or color the builder wants."

The writer says that glass houses must be constructed on a concrete foundation and a wood framework. There will be an air-pocket between the outside and the inside walls which will keep out both heat and cold. It is claimed that the first cost of the house would also prove to be practically the last, as the need for repairs would be almost nonexistent.

Tragedy and Comedy in Errors by Wire

One of the most expensive telegrams ever sent over the wires was sent from Washington to New York, when Wall Street was awaiting the decision of the Supreme court on the taxability of stock dividends. At noon a message came through that the decision was that the tax was valid. Prices at once began to fall. Two hours later it was announced that the real decision was exactly the opposite to what had first been wired, and prices rose quickly. The mistake, however, had cost $1,000,000. To turn from tragedy to comedy, a cable message was received at Sydney, New South Wales, from Noumea, the capital of New Caledonia, saying: "Sailors and soldiers routed by Caledonians." New Caledonia is the French convict settlement, and such alarm was caused by the message that a warship was dispatched for the protection of British subjects. When the vessel arrived it was found the message referred to the victory of the New Caledonian football team over an eleven composed of French soldiers and sailors.

School Money Is Being Apportioned

Education Funds Are Divided Among Rural, High Schools and Teacher Apportionments.

Jefferson City, Mo., Aug. 17.—State Superintendent of Schools Charles A. Lee today announced the apportionment of $3,219,163.35 one third of the ordinary revenue to the public schools of Missouri and certified the various amounts to be distributed to each county to the state auditor, who will pay the money to the counties.

The distribution of special aids as announced were: To rural schools, $276,670; to high schools, $103,054; teacher apportionment, $1,656,325; special third class high schools, $96,788; consolidated schools, $171,031; schools for defectives, $76,900.

The total amount apportioned in special aids totals $734,015.67; leaving $2,845,147.68 to be distributed to 9,184 districts on the basis of their teachers' salaries and the total number of days attended by all pupils in the state last year.

As the amount set aside for the teacher apportionment was $1,656,225, there was but $828,822.68 left after all deductions, to apportion on days attendance. As the total days attendance of all pupils last year was 100,803,745, the amount apportioned for each day's attendance of each pupil is slightly less than eight mills a day.

In commenting on this year's apportionment Superintendent Lee said the one-third part of the revenue was nearly a million dollars less than last year, while the amount apportioned to rural schools was $30,000 more than 1924. He also said that the number of teachers had increased making a larger apportionment on that basis necessary. The total days attended by all students also increased about three million days, reducing the amount of apportionment for each day's attendance to a little over one-third of what it was last year. In 1924 the apportionment for days of attendance was slightly more than two and one-tenth cents a day.

Practical Evidence Wanted

"John Marrows," said the farmer's wife, coming out to the back porch, where her husband sat tilted back in his chair, his feet on a railing, "didn't I hear you tell the parson when he was here that you had strong views on the temperance movement?"

"Yes," Mr. Marrows replied, rather stiffly. "I said so, and you know that I have."

"Well," said Mrs. Marrows, "suppose you go and express a few of them on the pump handle. I want a pail of water."

Irreverent Youth

Susie raised her voice and called to her mother in the next room, "Mother! Mother! You'd better come in here right away!" Mother arrived panting and out of breath. "What is it?"

Susie pointed at her small brother and continued in an awe-stricken tone, "He was teasing God! Saying his prayers with one eye open, he was!"

Chicago Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—Grain futures finished irregular on the Board of Trade tday. Wheat made moderate gains over the previous close. Course grains were fractionally lower.

Spirited short covering rallied wheat after an early drop of 3½c. The advance not only obliterated the down turn but sent prices above Saturday's finish.

Beneficial rains over the dry central states created selling in corn. The strength in the leading serial prevented a downturn, making a more impressive showing.

Oats weakened with corn after a steady opening.

Provisions advanced early on decreased stocks but later dropped back on profit sales.

Hall of Fame

Herman Schwartze, giant pitcher of the Bloomington team, Three-Eye League, got into baildom's hall of fame the other day by hurling a perfect game against Springfield, not an opposing batter reaching first base. Schwartze formerly pitched in the Michigan-Ontario League.

CHAMPIONSHIP TO RED OAK

MARYVILLE GOLFERS LOSE TO SHENANDOAH YESTERDAY.

VAUGHAN COPS HONORS

By Corning Failing To Show Up and Red Oak Losing, Maryville Wins Two Out of Three.

Association Standings.

Teams	Played	Won	Lost	Pct.
Red Oak	12	9	3	.750
Maryville	12	8	4	.658
Villisca	12	7	5	.583

Counting yesterday's games:

Shenandoah golfers proved the downfall of the Maryville golf team to tie Red Oak for the honors this year in the Iowa-Missouri Golf Association tournament. Shenandoah and Red Oak teams played on the local links yesterday afternoon in a postponed match, with Shenandoah defeating Maryville for pars and bogies and tieing on the medal score. Red Oak lost to the local golf team and by Corning forfeiting by failing to appear, Maryville won two and lost one of the three matches scheduled for yesterday.

Maryville put up the poorest exhibition of golf that the team has displayed this year, not a member of the sextet shooting below 95 for the eighteen holes. It was the poor playing on the part of the Maryville golfers that lost them the chance to tie Red Oak for the league leadership. As it is now, Maryville ranks second.

Vaughan of Shenandoah, without forcing himself showed that he was without an equal on the course yesterday. His score of 41 for the first nine holes and a 43 for the second round, was the lowest score turned in yesterday, and he held honors with nine pars and twelve bogies among the eighteen competing golfers.

Sackett of Red Oak ranked second on medal score with a 90 and was also second in number of bogies with eleven. Dothage,a team mate of Vaughan, copped second honors for number of pars, chalking up seven.

Among the Maryville players Hamilton scored the most pars, his card showing six, while Miller had nine bogies, two more than any of the Maryville golfers and Vogt turned in low score of 95.

The team scores yesterday:

Team	Pars	Bogies	Medal Score
Shenandoah	27	42	585
Red Oak	19	33	621
Maryville	25	39	585

The Pickering Independents defeated the Hopkins nine at Hopkins yesterday afternoon by a score of 7 to 5.

Employment Is on Decline Now

Washington, Aug. 17—On the heels of the recent reports showing the cost of living to be steadily increasing, the Department of Labor today made public a survey which showed that employment in manufacturing industries is steadily decreasing, as are the per capita earnings of those employed.

Seasonal conditions generally are held responsible for the decrease in employment and compensations.

Gardner Leads Press Poll for U. S. Senate

40 of 70 Democratic Newspapers of the State Favor Ex-Governor for 1926.

Jefferson City, Mo., Aug. 17.—9 political straw, which some of the Jefferson City politicians are pointing out as indicative of the Democratic sentiment of Missouri is found in the poll that is being made by the Holden (Johnson County) Enterprise, of Democratic newspapers of the state.

Ralph G. Bray, editor of the Enterprise, has received replies from seventy Democratic newspapers to a letter asking for their first and second choice for United States Senator on the Democratic ticket in 1926.

Of these seventy papers, forty give former Gov. Frederick D. Gardner as their first choice. Harry B. Hawes is first choice of seven and Charles M. Hay is second choice of six. Gardner is second choice of eleven of the papers, Hawes is second choice of twelve and Hay the second choice of twelve.

Among the scattering expressions, Elmer O. Jones of La Plata is first choice of one newspaper, Congressman Thomas L. Rubey of Lebanon, Floyd Jacobs of Kansas City, and H. J. Waters of Kansas City are second choice each of one paper.

Several of the papers replied they had no first choice for United States Senator at this time. In reply to the question as to what attitude the candidate for the Senate of the Democratic party should take on the Ku Klux Klan two favored condemning it, and sixty-five declared for leaving that issue strictly alone.

Mrs. Spas Neglects to Get License for Dog; Under Arrest

Astoria, L. I., Aug. 17—Mrs. John Spas, mother of "Cinderella Mary" is technically under arrest—all because of "Prince" her one eyed mongrel dog.

A warrant for Mrs. Spas' arrest was issued after she had ignored a request by Charles Seaman of the society for the prevention of cruelty to animals, to appear in court and explain why she had no license for her pet pup.

Seaman said Mrs. Spas probably forgot to appear in court because of the excitement attending her daughter's adoption by Edward W. Browning.

Scopes' Sister Is to Teach at Girls' School

Tarrytown, N. Y., Aug. 17—Lela V Scopes, whose views on evolution coincide with those for which her brother stood trial in Tennessee, will join the faculty of the Higland school for girls here this fall.

Dr. Eugene H. Lepman, head of the school, said admiration for Miss Scopes in supporting her brother in his battle with the fundamentalists led him to offer her a position as instructor in mathematics and biology.

Oldest Circus in the Country Coming Here

W. T. Buchanan, Advance Agent of Robbins Brothers, Old Time Newspaper Man, Is Here Today

As advance agent of the mammoth Robbins Brothers four ring circus shows that appear in Maryville Thursday, there arrived in the city today W. T. Buchanan, old-time newspaper man and short story writer, having come up from Atchison, Kan., where he was the guest of Ed Howe of the Atchison Globe.

In speaking of the Robbins Brothers Big Circus, Mr. Buchanan stated that it was without doubt the largest in the world giving a street parade. It carries 600 persons upon the road, has three herds of elephants, 200 wild animals, 200 horses and furnishes 1600 meals a day in its cook house for those connected with the movements of the property.

"The show is one of the oldest in the country. It stands first in the matter of performance," said Mr. Buchanan, "and in coming to Maryville it will bring all of the latest productions of the outdoor arena. The performing elephants and the trained seals are alone well worth all that is asked in the matter of the price of admission. There are bareback riders, trained high school horses, trained ponies, and acrobatic families from foreign countries like the ten belonging to the Matsumata family, direct from Nagasaka, Japan, being imported by the circus. It is their first appearance in America and while they can not talk English they can perform as no human beings were known to perform before.

"Another unusual feature given in the regular program is the Ponca Bill's Wild West, that carries fifty cowboys and fifty Sioux Indians. They are stars in their given line, and shine with considerable lustre. The circus is twice its former size in fact Mr. Buchanan said that only recently the show purchased the property of the United States Circus Corporation and absorbed the Ponca Bill Wild West. All of this was simply added to the already mammoth and stupenduous circus of the Robbins Brothers four ring shows.

"The circus comes to Maryville from Atchison, Kan., and comes in its complete entirety. It is a clean, wholesome circus and the people in this part of the state will certainly enjoy the opportunity of witnessing the world's greatest circus," Mr. Buchanan advises.
